Short Bio and research interests:

I'm a resource economist and in my whole academic career (since mid-90ties) I have studied natural resources and environmental issues using economic theory mostly related to marine resources. I have studied both theoretical and empirical issues using among other things bio-economic dynamic modelling and regulation theory. Lately I have investigated how technical progress can change the way we think about sustainable exploitation in renewable resource industries. I work with Arctic marine resource governance and how to manage these resources under climate changes. I look also into sustainable energy systems, biogas, and economics of energy storage. My research is often co-financed by companies, public agencies and funds.

Publication activity:

Author and co-author of 46 publications in international peer-reviewed journals and contributed to numerous book chapters, conference proceedings and reports (>1100 citations (Google), H-index = 17).

Professional Organizations and networks:

European Association of Environmental and Resource Economists (EAERE), International Association for Energy Economics, International Institute for Fisheries Economics and Trade (IIFET), Natural Resource Modelling Association, Nationaløkonomisk Forening and Center for Environmental Economics at UCSD.

Research stays abroad and invited seminars:

Research stays in Malaysia, Canada, Vietnam and USA and giving seminars with focus on natural resource economics in more than 13 foreign universities.
